August Greystone is a bear shifter destined for greatness. Or so, that's what he's always been told.

As the next in line to become alpha of his clan, August's days of singlehood are drawing to a close. Long since committed to a prearranged mating, August finds himself feeling trapped and, worse, afraid. In a desperate attempt to prolong his freedom, August flees his family's ancestral home and heads to the nearest city. It's there that he meets Rhys Alexander, a tiger shifter with a bad streak the size of a mountain.

Rhys Alexander has spent the better part of his life not giving a damn. He goes where he wants, does what he likes, and answers to no one.

Leading a life as a globetrotting rogue has its perks. For Rhys, one of those perks has been the ability to pick up and move on whenever things get too complicated and messy. So when he encounters a simple mountain bear shifter with broad shoulders and a shy personality, it's all Rhys can do to maintain his unattached persona.

When a familiar and dangerous presence shows up in search of August to bring him home, Rhys must change his ways in order to keep his newfound love by his side. Failing that, August will be forced to go through with his prearranged mating and Rhys will lose him forever.

Can these two shifters from different worlds come together in time to save their budding relationship? Or will the experience be too much for them to bear?
